

Possible signs of desquamation, started and coincided with talk about a diagnosis «Scarlet fever», however there are cases when mercury poisoning was the initial factor

- Inflammation 2022 page 3 Strasbourg, France
- Thumb joint 2020 page 4 Omastrand, Kvam, Norway
- Nails page 5 Omastrand, Kvam, Norway
- Nails 2021 page 6 car somewhere
- Nails with inflammation 2021 page 7 Omastrand, Kvam, Norway
- News dagbladet(dot)no matching memory from childhood page 8

A possible useful brief about a Grok inquiry

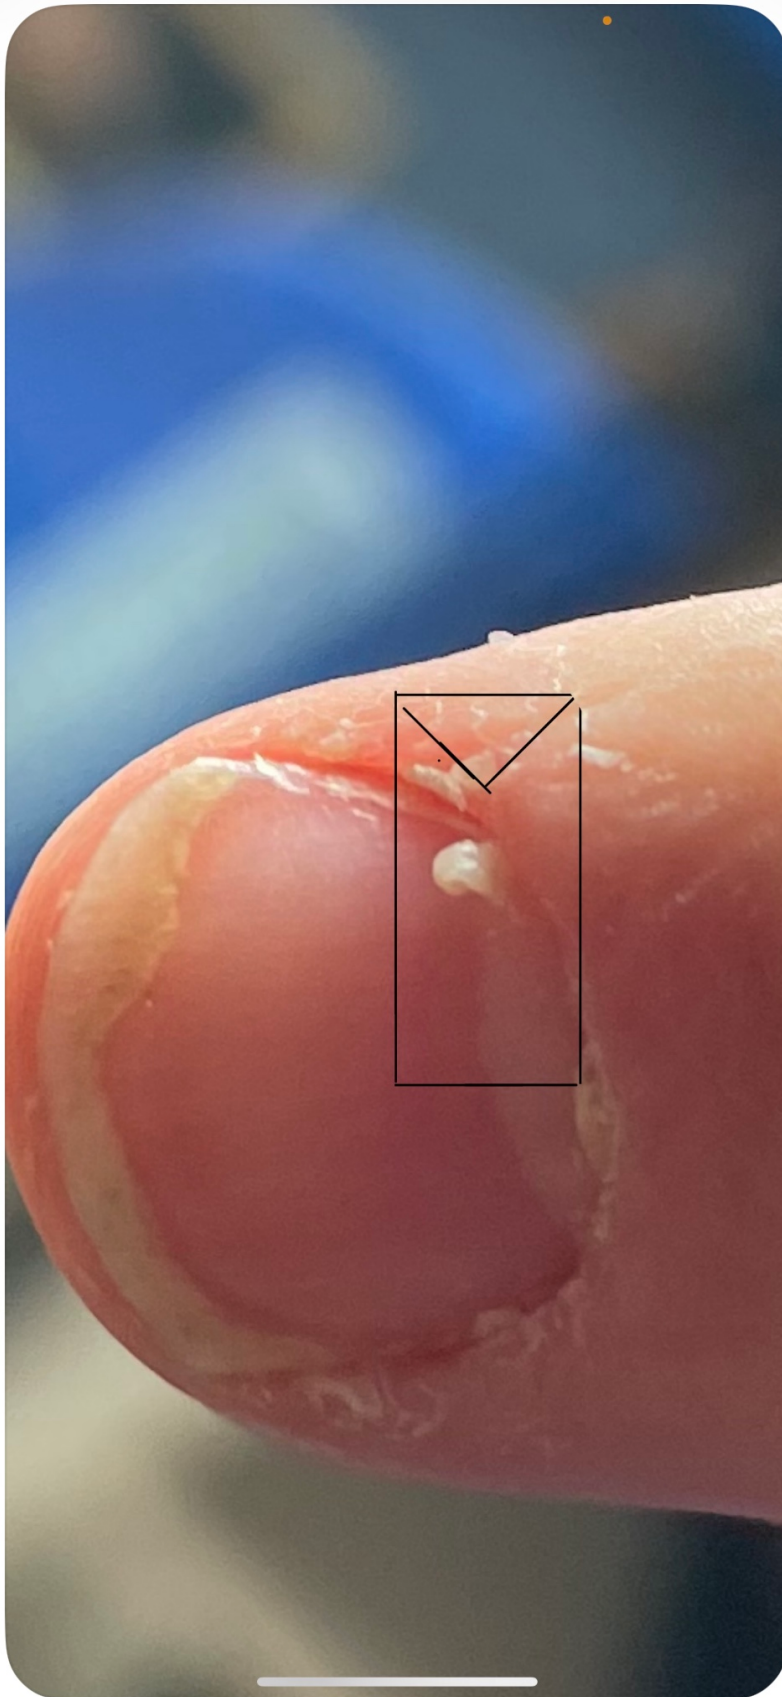

Grok does agree with me, my symptoms and nail/hand/fingers/skin status look more like Kawasaki syndrome, more than Scarlet fever that I remember was the description communicated to me in childhood when I attach images as below in the prompt and make inquiries. I'm adding these details, because I am not very certain how images look on other interfaces, and how well they are preserved, and don't have very much time to assert quality of data, resolution, and so forth.

A short brief about memories about diagnosis

There is only some sort of traces of confirmation when I mention Scarlet fever. This is predominately what I remember. This was probably my diagnosis. However I have heard Kawasaki syndrome mentioned. Did I hear it mentioned in association with evaluation by others or people trying to «make ammends» somehow? This is my clearest evaluation in toto: I was certainly diagnosed with «Scarlet Fever». There was talk about the doctor, who diagnosed me, he was a spokesman for a soft core adult magazine called Cupido or something like that. Did he communicate less serious sides regarding himself as a strategy to convey a message?

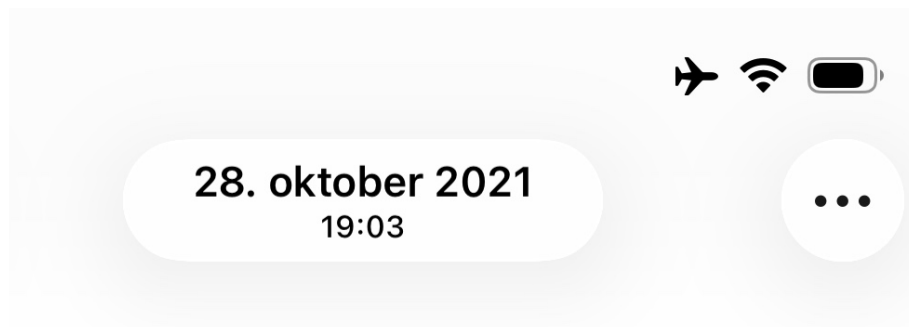

11. april 2022
14:51

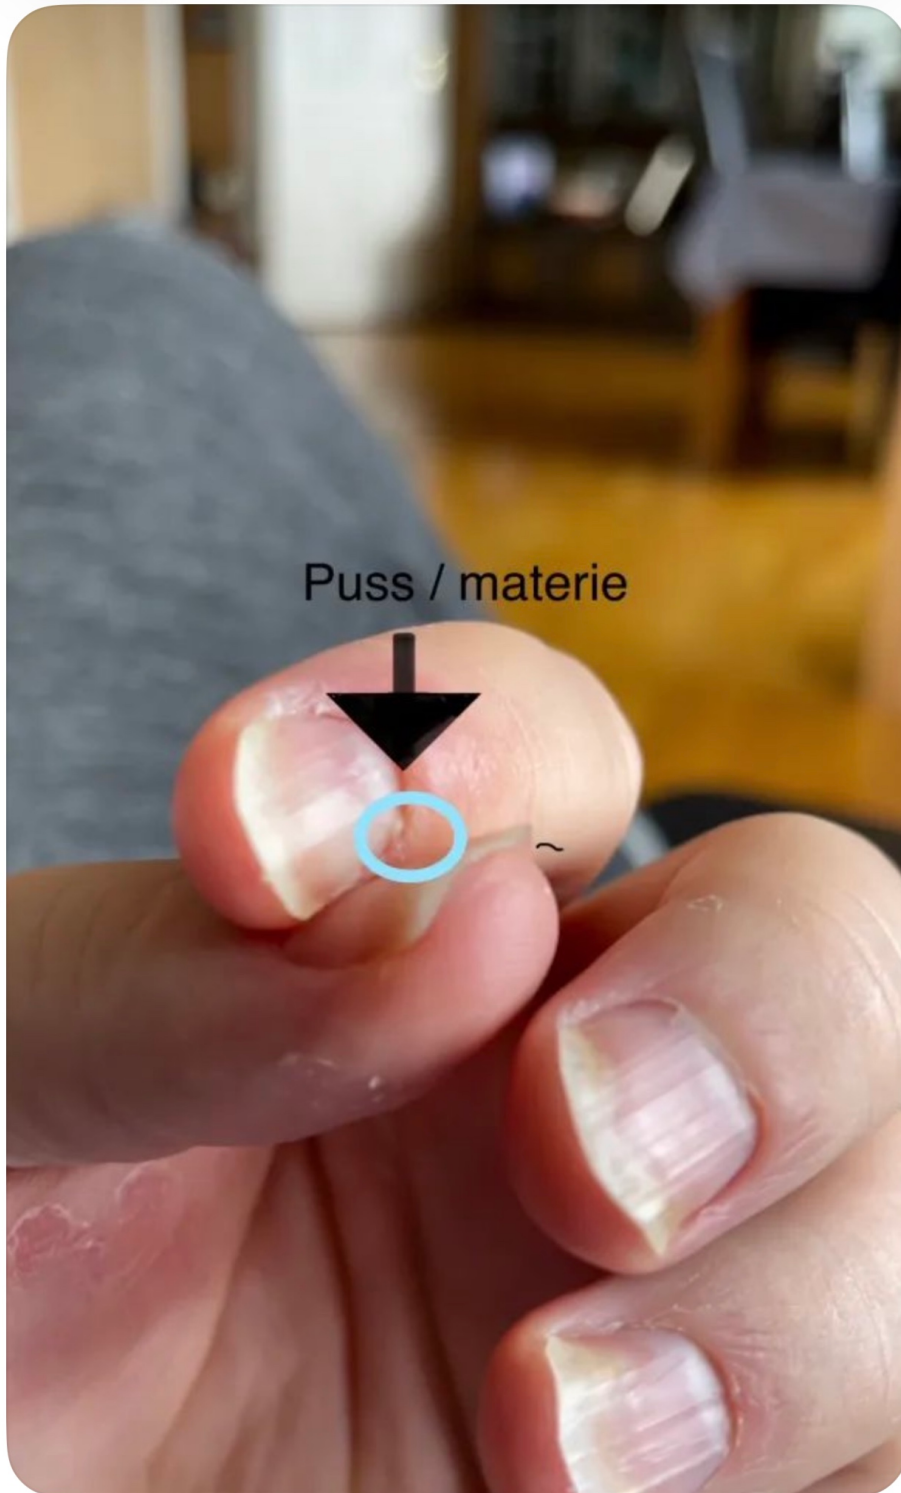

19:36

28. oktober 2021
17:25

19:36

17. oktober 2021
19:18

19:18

dagbladet.no

Dagbladet

SISTE NYTT

LOGG INN

Coronaviruset

Coronapandemien: Mystisk barnesykdom øker kraftig

Forskere har funnet 30 ganger økt forekomst av Kawasaki-liknende sykdom i italienske Bergamo etter virusutbruddet.

MYSTISK BARNESYKDOM: Den sjeldne b... Vis mer

Hei, denne artikkelen er over ett år gammel og inneholde utdatert informasjon

